第1問 次の文章を読んで問いに答えなさい。なお、「*」のついた語句には注釈がつけられています。

When author and illustrator Mariko Shinju's son was 4 years old, he left food on his plate. Like many Japanese mothers, Shinju said to him, "Mottainai." "What is mottainai, Mom?" he asked. Although she grew up hearing her mother and grandmother say "mottainai," she couldn't find the right words to explain what it meant. It was just something that was said to express disappointment at a waste of food or other things. So ①instead, she picked up a pen and began to draw. What emerged on the page was the story of Mottainai Baasan, "Mottainai Grandma" in English, a wise and *funky old woman who takes a young boy on a journey to show him the virtues of *mindful consumption.

A mottainai lifestyle is more than just eating what's on your plate, though. It's also a call to action echoing the more modern saying of "reduce, reuse, recycle," with an added fourth "R" — "respect." Shinju says, "If we have a sharing *mindset instead of being selfish, we can make this world a better place with the heart of mottainai. It is about being filled with thanks, kindness, and respect for the people who made (the item). "She says, "Since we're surrounded by cheap goods, if something breaks, it's cheaper to buy a new one rather than fix it. ②I realized my child might grow up not understanding the meaning of mottainai. ③I was afraid of what would happen to our society if all children became accustomed to throwing away *disposable items, and grew up to become people who didn't care about food."

According to the *United Nations, every year one third of global food production is wasted and roughly eight million tons of plastic waste ends up in the ocean. She realized that teaching children about the importance of being mindful of waste and respecting their environment could have a positive impact, however small, on 4this situation.

Shinju adds that being more mindful of the environment is an important part of life during a global *pandemic as well. ⑤ "Before we try to restore our lives to how it used to be, we should aim for a better world than before," she says. "I would like to move forward by giving priority to what we should do to live and finding ways to make everyone happy in a *sustainable society that protects the environment." Under the kind but watchful eyes of Mottainai Grandma, every day can be an opportunity to make the world a better place by respecting the environment.

Stella, Josh, and Oliver are meeting up after summer break.

Stella:	It's finally cooling down after that long, humid summer. I was hoping to go traveling over the summer, but, because of the heat, I just couldn't manage to get out of the house! What did you get up to, Josh?
Josh :	I'm afraid my story is the same as yours, Stella. ①
	But it should be cooling down soon, so I'm planning on going camping next week.
Stella:	Camping? I've never been camping before, but I've always wanted to try it out. People who go camping always seem to be so prepared, and you need a lot of equipment to do it, right?
Josh:	That's true. Many people spend money on camping equipment like backpacks, tents, and *foodstuffs like candy bars and instant food. But actually, sometimes, you don't need to prepare anything at all! ②
	So you don't need to buy a lot of equipment, since we're not really camping, to be honest.
Stella:	That sounds great! It's much easier to rent a cabin and enjoy cooking with your friends instead of having to worry about getting all the equipment for camping. Where are you going to travel?
Josh:	We're going camping in Hokkaido, even though it will be a bit cool at this time of year. It's very *brisk at night, but the day time should be comfortable and great for hiking. My friend, Oliver, wants to go back to his hometown and visit his family, so we'll stop by his house on the way. Oh, there he is now!
Stella:
Oliver:	Oh, hi, Stella, how did you know?
Stella:	Josh was just telling me about 4
	It sounds like it will be so much fun.
Josh:	Next time, you should come along with us, right, Stella?
Stella:	That would be great!
*foo	odstuffs 食物

│第3問│ 次の文章を読んで下線①と②を英語にしなさい。

富山の雪 — そう書き出すだけで、私の心はまるで機械じかけのように、冷たく暗い風景を浮かべてしまう。①この小さい日本に雪国は数多い。だが、私には、富山の雪は特別である。あの白い雪が、決して純白のものとして心の中に捺されていないという点において、富山の街をうずめつくす雪は特別なのである。②私が富山での生活を経験したのは十歳のときの、それもわずか一年間だけのことであるのに、私の内にこやみなく降りつもる雪は、あの富山の鉛色の雪であって、他のどの雪国にもない独自のものである。
